

UNESCO can see it. Why can't Shell?

British Columbia's Sacred Headwaters is so special, it meets UNESCO's criteria for protection as a World Heritage Site. Here, grizzly bears and caribou roam at the shared birthplace of three of Canada's greatest wild salmon rivers.

Shell wants to drill for coalbed methane in the heart of the Sacred Headwaters. Town councils, First Nations, business owners and thousands of others have stood up to say no.

It's time for Shell to lead the way in protecting the Sacred Headwaters.

Albertans can help. Call Shell and BC Premier Gordon Campbell today. Urge them to support protecting the Sacred Headwaters from coalbed methane drilling.

Shell Canada President Brian Straub: (403) 691-3111

BC Premier Gordon Campbell: (250) 387-1715

E-mail: premier@gov.bc.ca

Skeena Watershed Conservation Coalition is a member of Citizens Concerned About Coalbed Methane, a coalition of organizations working to improve B.C.'s coalbed methane industry.

LEARN MORE: concernedaboutcbm.org